Frigoscandia pioneered impingement freezing in the 1990's because food processors needed a cost-effective alternative to cryogenic freezing of hamburger patties.

Delivering all the quality, speed, throughput and flexibility – at half the cost – impingement technology has quickly proved itself as the most efficient, food-focused method to:

- Freeze a wide range of thin or flat products, including high-value IQF products.
- Crust freeze and stabilize soft food and sticky confectionery before further processing.
- Improve throughput, yield and hygiene in deli-product slicing and
- Rapidly super-chill raw meat products for safer chilled distribution.
